HIDDEN AGENDA REDEYE TAKES YOU OUTSIDE YOUR COMFORT ZONE

On the agenda: Open shop at West Town Bikes, 2418 W. North Ave.; westtownbikes.org.

>> Check it out if you ... want to do some bike riding but need to fix those two flat tires first, if you like to get hands-on with repairs but don't have the tools or if you want to learn more about how your bike works.

>> The details: From noon to 6 p.m. every Saturday, bike owners can work on their rides at the West Town Bikes workshop. Instructors are on hand to answer questions and provide advice, but ideally visitors would have at least a basic knowledge of bike maintenance so they can get their work done quicker, said West Town Bikes President Alex Wilson.

The workshops draw both casual riders and hardcore racers. Basic parts are available at the shop, but if you're planning on a more serious repair or upgrade you should make sure to bring materials with you. And remember to dress for being in a shop—that means no flip-flops. West Town suggests a donation of $10 per hour.

>> The payoff: Improve your bike—and your bike knowledge.

FIRST DATE DISASTER RELEASE

Think you've seen some duds? Just listen to these horror stories—plus, simple dating tips

By Leonor Vivanco

Kelly Guist's first date with a cute guy she met at a party was a disaster.

It started out bad. He talked about himself incessantly—and about how much money he made—and he was rude to the waitress, whom he called "Honey."

It got worse. "He scooted his chair over to me and put his arm around me ... and then he pulled a boob grab. I just kind of threw his arm off," said Guist, 32, who lives in Albany Park.

Things hit rock bottom when he only offered to pay the tip, not the bill, for dinner, Guist said. Fuming, she paid using her credit card. "That's OK, I'll take care of it, but promise me you'll never call me again," she remembers telling him.

But after that night in 2002, he e-mailed her and called twice.

"I thought I was pretty clear I didn't want to see him again," said Guist, now married.

Getting the first date is hard enough, but the rules are changing. If you're not careful, you could screw up—before the date, on the date and even after the date. Relationship experts clued RedEye in to some of the many potential blunders to avoid if you want the date to go well, so well that it could possibly be the last first date you ever go on.

Pre-date

Most experts agree it's best to request a first date over the phone.

While there are no uncomfortable silences when you text, it can be impersonal, experts said.

Hearing him or her on the phone gives you clues, especially in the tone of voice, which could indicate excitement or dread, said Jason Tesauro, coauthor of "The Modern Gentleman: A Guide to Essential Manners, Savvy & Vice." "Isn't it worth it to get her on the phone to hear a twinge of nervousness?" he said.

Technology gives daters a new set of ways to screw up, even before the first date, said Anna David, a sex expert and author of "Party Girl." "With Twitter and Facebook and all these things, you probably shouldn't be saying, 'I'm out with Sue Sanchez tonight," she said.

Real-life faux pas: After exchanging numbers with a guy she met at a bar (a different guy than Mr. Dine-and-Dash), Guist got an e-mail with a link to his blog. "I went to his blog and he had a big, long blog entry on me. I didn't know whether to be flattered or freaked out," she said.

He called and they talked, but she told him she already had weekend plans. Still, he left multiple messages and called her for the next two months. She said she worried she might have to change her number. "A month and a half later, he left me a message: 'Hey Kelly, me and my friends are going to the beach. Thought you might want to come along.' As if we had been hanging out this whole time," Guist said.

They never made it out on a first date.

On the date

Everything from conversation to behavior matters.

Leave your bad attitude, emotional baggage and F-bombs at home. Do pick a place you both enjoy where there's some sort of activity involved and time to talk, said Patti Feinstein, a dating coach in Chicago. Avoid a movie, where you can't talk, or a bar, where you could run into your friends or an ex.

Forget the rule about politics being off limits, Feinstein said. "It's just so fascinating right now. How can you not [talk about it]?"

But don't admit something that could scare off your date: "Don't say, 'I Googled you,' because it looks like you're stalking them. Yes we all do it, but we don't need to admit it on the first date," Feinstein said.

Also, nobody wants to hear about your every accomplishment or your future plans on the first date, said Jennifer Kelton, dating expert and author of "Don't Use My Sweater Like a Towel."

"Don't talk about your biological clock, how many kids you want to have, your time frame of 'I want to be married by the time I'm 27 and I want kids by the time I'm 33.'" she said.

Keep the drinking under control and don't stage a belch-fest, experts said. Equally important is turning off all electronics, because it's rude to text or answer the phone while on the date. "If you're really that addicted to your Crack-Berry, then look at it in the bathroom," Kelton said.

Real-life faux pas: "I had a terrible first date once. I was in high school and I went to visit a girl in a different city," said Rob Tuliszewski, now 25 and living in Andersonville.

"We were meeting at a party and she was supposed to drive later, but when I got there she was slamming shots and falling down. She was wasted, just hammered," he remembers. "The cops came and it got busted, and she didn't want to get in the back of the car and eventually vomited all over the window. So there I was at 2 a.m. in 20-degree weather, scraping puke off a car."

Post-date

If you're not feeling any chemistry, it's OK to say it, said David, the sex expert and author. "If you don't like the person, saying, 'I don't really feel there is a connection' is a good thing," she said.

Still, there are ways to tell if your date will be receptive if you make a move.

Tesauro said there are opportunities during the date to put your hand on top of your date's, for example, and gauge the date's response. But be sure not to "be so coy that your coolness is being mistaken for disinterest," he said.

Before you go diving in for the kiss, set the mood a little: Recap the date and go over the fun parts, Tesauro said. Then, hug and hold it for a moment.

"If she's not wanting that to happen, this is her chance to let you know" in case you've missed the signs, Tesauro said

And what about sex on the first date?

"We all want to have a bit of the chase and a bit of the mystery," Kelton, the dating expert, said of both men and women. "If you give it up that quickly ... the guy probably isn't going to call you again, except for a booty call. I think if a guy is really into you, he's going to wait."

But Feinstein said there's no right or wrong on sex on the first date. "It's going to be up to the two people. You make your own rule and then you break it when you feel like it."

Always call the next day unless you both obviously had a miserable time, you'd say thanks and set up a second date in one phone call, he said. If your said author Jason Tesauro. Ideally,

Real-life faux pas: When Natalie Ryan accepted a study-and-dinner date in college, she didn't count on the guy coming over and stripping down in less than five minutes. She went to get him a drink from the kitchen and returned to find him in her bed.

"What are you doing?" Ryan, 29, of Humboldt Park remembers asking him.

Nothing happened, and she told him to eave.

"That pretty much killed it," she said. LVIVANCO@TRIBUNE.COM

It's not me, it's you

RedEye asked Chicagoans to tell us about their worst first dates.

[MICHAEL MELLINI, REDEYE]

"I met this guy for a movie and he wouldn't really talk. In the middle he just got up and left and then five minutes later texted me saying I was wasting his time if I wasn't going to put out."

-BRITTANY HIPPS, 20, SOUTHEAST SIDE "We went out to a sushi bar and a good friend happened to be there. My date started talking to him and they were laughing for a while, and she said something jokingly about his mother. His mother had just passed, and she didn't know that, but he took it seriously and started yelling at her. I was mad at him because she used to be Miss Ohio."

-EMIL JACKSON, 40, SOUTH SHORE

"I was with this cute guy on a first date and we went to eat. He noticed my shoes were really small—I was wearing [size] 41/2 Chuck Taylors—and took my foot and started rubbing it in front of everyone, telling me about all his foot fetishes. It made me really uncomfortable."

-SIEMBRA TRUJILLO, 20, EVANSTON

"I went on a date with this guy who burped a lot. We went to a movie and he kept burping. He also kept littering, and when I told him not to he told me to go pick it up. ... At dinner he ate too much at once. He was eating a burger and took a giant bite and

"I've been married for IO years, but a long time ago, when I was working at an ad agency, a cute sales rep asked me out. We went to a Cubs game and later in the night I reached up to [run] my fingers through his hair, and it turned out it was a toupee. It freaked me out. I would've rather he just be bald."

Picking a date spot? Choose wisely

Sure, there are good reasons why most spots become first-date clichés. But do you really want to be remembered as that guy? On your next date, ditch the predictable and woo your love interest at one of these alternatives. [M. KATHLEEN PRATT, METROMIX]

CLICHE

La Creperie

2845 N. CLARK ST. 773-528-9050

Ah, France. Isn't it romantic? Sure, but that's exactly what the dozen or so other guys who brought their dates here for crepes before a movie at the nearby Landmark Century Centre Cinema are thinking too.

ALTERNATIVE

Fat Willy's Rib Shack

24I6 W. SCHUBERT AVE. 773-782-I800

With the Kerasotes Chicago City North I4 movie theater right across the street, this Logan Square spot with a surprisingly cute sidewalk cafe is just the place to kick off a dinner-and-a-movie date. (And don't worry, the menu includes barbecue options considerably less messy than romance-killing ribs.)

Geja's Cafe

340 W. ARMITAGE AVE. 773-281-9101

We've never quite understood what's so romantic about bubbling pots of melted cheese, but that hasn't deterred couples from flocking to this Lincoln Park fondue spot for more than four decades. That's right, Romeo: four decades. Your parents probably made out in the car after a date here. Oh, sorry—did that kill the romance for you?

ALTERNATIVE

Fondue Stube

2717 W. PETERSON AVE. 773-784-2200

This West Ridge spot trots out the same bubbling pots of cheese and rich chocolate as other fondue spots, but the unintentionally retro decor and off-the-beaten path location make it a quirky alternative to more obvious picks.

THE CLICHE

Mia Francesca

33II N. CLARK ST. 773-28I-33IO The original outpost of the Francesca's empire draws hordes of Lakeview locals with reliable Italian eats. It's a decent go-to option if you live in the 'hood, but look to your left and right: Hey, everyone's on a first date!

THE ALTERNATIVE

Piccolo Sogno

464 N. HALSTED ST. 312-421-0077
Just IO days old, Tony Priolo's River West spot is too new to be a cliche. The reasonably priced Italian is par with Francesca's in cost and a cut above in flavor—and the charming back patio ups the romance

Logan Bar & Grill

You know what they say: If it ain't broke, don't fix it. The owners of Northside Bar & Grill (1635 N. Damen Ave. 773-384-3555) have had a good thing going in Bucktown for nearly two decades, so when they opened sibling spot Logan Bar & Grill (2230 N. California Ave. 773-252-IIIO) this week, they didn't change much. In fact, they built the place using the exact same plans. Check it out this weekend and be among the first to post a review at metromix.com.

WHAT'S THIS WEEKEND

By M. Kathleen Pratt

DO IT

Sleep in

It's an age-old Sunday morning conundrum: Sleep? Or brunch? Brunch? Or sleep? Your answer just got easier. Keeping with its late-night, hard livin' rock 'n' roller theme, River North spot Blue 13 (416 W. Ontario St. 312-787-1400), which just opened last Friday, serves brunch until 7 p.m. Sundays—and like you some weekends, it doesn't even get started until noon. Options include fresh-fruit sushi ($8), a bacon-, egg- and cheese-topped "hangover burger" ($12) and classics like eggs Benedict ($10) and a turkey club ($12).

EAT IT

Dessert at Sepia

From the ridiculously addictive flatbreads to the handcrafted cocktails, our meals at Sepia (123 N. Jefferson St. 312-441-1920) have been close to perfect. So close, in fact, that we gave 'em a pass when it came to dessert, which always seemed to be, well, just a little inconsistent. Not anymore. The West Loop spot brought former Kevin pastry chef Cindy Schuman on board earlier this month, and we have high hopes for her menu, which includes treats such as brown sugar biscuits with lemon-ginger curd and blueberry compote ($8) and peach-cherry crisp with cinnamon ice cream ($8).

The scene: The promise of street fests, the lakefront and alfresco dining is the only thing that gets Chicagoans though brutal and lingering winters. We speak from experience.

Restaurateurs also know this. Throw a few plastic chairs on a patio at the first hint of summer, and they'll have an audience. We feel like suckers when we find ourselves on one of these patios.

Mike Guler is not one of these restaurateurs. His 5-year-old Roscoe Village Turkish spot, Turquoise Restaurant, has one of the most beautiful sidewalk cafes in town, complete with white tablecloths, hanging flower baskets and a canopied terrace. The icing on the cake: The patio is tucked along a tree-lined street.

Turkish-American families outnumbered the Roscoe Village thirtysomethings the morning we dined. Both groups seemed comfortable in their flip-flops.

The cuisine: If eggs are your Sunday morning hangover cure, Turquoise is your place. The $13.95 seven-course prix-fixe menu—the only brunch option—includes no fewer than three egg dishes and starts with a glass of sparkling wine to help with that headache.

If you prefer options to volume, Turquoise might not be for you.

That's not to say you don't get a range of entrees at Turquoise. It's just that none was a home run.

The cheesy scrambled eggs—with generous feta, parmesan, mozzarella and blue cheeses—was easily our favorite. The poached eggs with a borscht-like melange of tomatoes, parsley, garlic, and peppers, were less memorable. A crepe arrived with nothing more than a dusting of powdered sugar—luckily, the packet of honey that arrived with our bread was a quick fix.

Entrees are served family style, and portions are generous. The pace is slow—who wouldn't want to linger here on a beautiful summer morning?—so if you're on a schedule, let your server know.

Your time to shine

Moonshine 1824 W. DIVISION ST. 773-862-8686

east of Damen Avenue on Division Street's rockin' alfresco strip, Moonshine's an ideal date spot just about any time of day. A neighborhood crowd flocks to this casual Wicker Park mainstay for drinks, weekend brunch (10 a.m.-2 p.m.), lunch and dinner. The patio, an extra-wide space with ready access to Division Street's hard-to-beat people-watching, seats about 130. Inside, you have a choice of two bars. To avoid distractions from the TVs. guide your date to the comfy seating by the window.

 $\textbf{Noise level:} \ The \ indoor \ bars \ get \ lively, so \ the$ huge patio is much better for getting-to-knowyou convos. Manager Israel Fernandez tells us Moonshine is a popular date place on off nights (Monday through Wednesday), when the crowd is milder and the noise level significantly lower. If you like a little background music on a date, hit Moonshine any night after 10 p.m., when DJs spin house and a bit of hip-hop.

What to order: A place named Moonshine should have great drinks, right? In fact, it just opened its own brewery on-site. Offerings include Dizzy, a blonde ale ($5), and Thee Allmighty ($5), an IPA that delivers a nice kick at more than 7 percent ABV.

If you're craving a cocktail, try the best-selling strawberry-basil mojito ($9), a blend of Don Julio Reposado, fresh strawberries and basil muddled with lemons and topped with a splash of soda. Moonshine also stocks more than 70 varieties of whiskey.

A new chef, Aaron Ortego, recently took over the kitchen and added a bit of Southern flair to the menu. Look for specials such as catfish, hushpuppies and sumptuous barbecued meats.

Icebreaker: Order an Acai-tini ($10), made with Belvedere vodka and acai berry, lime and cranberry juices. You'll appear more health-conscious than you really are (that is a martini in your hand, after all) as vou discuss the touted health benefits of acai. Just be sure to note that acai is pronounced ah-SAHee. Let's not embarrass ourselves on a first date, eh?

Don't stop believin'

'X-Files' returns with Mulder, Scully still hunting for truth

Associated Press

Some Mulder and Scully fans were dubious when the title for the new movie based on their favorite TV show was announced: "The X-Files: I Want to Believe."

How, the skeptics wondered, could the two former FBI agents be anything but true believers after years of encountering aliens, monsters, ghosts and everything else that might go bump in the night?

But so-called X-Philes want to believe in this franchise that started way out on the fringes and eventually brought the creepy and paranormal into the mainstream. The feeling among its creators is mutual.

"We want to believe in the audience," said David Duchovny, who reprises his role as Fox Mulder, the guy with boogeymen on the brain, co-starring with Gillian Anderson as his soul mate and doubting Thomas, science-minded Dana Scully.

Devoted as fans might be, it's a leap of faith for "The X-Files" to return after such a long absence in an era when so many franchises compete for audiences' attention and sequels tend to come every two or three years

It's been a decade since the first "X-Files" movie and six years since the series went off the air after nine seasons.

The keepers of "The X-Files" figure the long wait has only fired up fans even more for a new adventure. In an interview with The Associated Press alongside Duchovny, Anderson and producer Frank Spotnitz, series creator Chris Carter described the reception he got at a fan gathering in Chile, where he had no idea the show had such a following.

"It was wild and warm and enthusiastic. They had an expo where they re-created Mulder's desk," said Carter, who also directed the new movie and co-wrote it with Spotnitz. "It was just amazing to be sitting there eating sunflower seeds (Mulder's favorite snack) at Mulder's desk in Chile."

Anderson recalled a similar reaction when they appeared earlier this year at New York Comic Con, a fan convention.

"The response that we got from the audience was almost, it was crazy. That was kind of the beginning of my realizing, people do still care," Anderson said. "I also think it's gotten passed down through the generations to kids of people who first watched it on TV."

"The X-Files" debuted in 1993 and quickly won a loyal cult audience. Strong word of mouth gradually drew more and more fans to the weird show with its ongoing story arc about alien visitations to Earth and clever stand-alone stories that one week might deal with life-sucking bugs unleashed from old-growth timber, and another week might touch on monstrous humans resulting from generations of inbreeding.

At the heart was Mulder, a brilliant FBI agent convinced his sister was abducted by aliens. Nicknamed "Spooky" by derisive colleagues, Mulder handled the X-Files, cases involving unexplained phenomena the bureau would prefer to sweep under the rug.

Scully, a medical doctor, was assigned as Mulder's partner, mainly to debunk his work, but she eventually became his comrade in arms, the two complementing each other's talents and maintaining a deep but chaste romantic longing.

In "I Want to Believe," Mulder's heart clearly remains with Scully. They spar just like old times, but they share the most explicit moments of affection in their 15 years together, though still restrained by Hollywood romantic standards.

Many fans always wanted to see Mulder and Scully in an all-out love affair, but Anderson said it was wise for Carter and Spotnitz to steer the show clear of that.

"They ended up playing the parents of the fans who thought they knew what they wanted, but if they had gotten what they wanted, I think they would have been sorely disappointed," Anderson said. "It would have had a negative effect on the series. But what was given to them was so electric and so long-lasting that it helped to carry through all the way to the end."

Mulder kisses Scully, with a baby between them, in the last episode of Season 8 of "The X-Files" on Fox in 2001. [FOX TV FILM STILL]

Where they left off

The 1998 "X-Files" movie was immersed in the Fox series' dense alien mythology. But "I Want to Believe" is patterned after the show's stand-alone episodes, requiring little prior knowledge of Mulder and Scully.

Drummed out of the FBI as the series wound down, Mulder has been living in exile, collecting news clips of strange happenings and hurling pencils at the ceiling out of boredom.

Scully, now a practicing doctor at a hospital, is approached by FBI agents (Amanda Peet and Xzibit) as an intermediary to bring Mulder in to consult on a case in which a defrocked-priest-turnedpsychic (Billy Connolly) claims to have visions about a missing bureau agent.

And they're off and running on a trail that leads them to a stash of severed arms buried in the snow, more missing persons and some ghoulish medical experiments worthy of Frankenstein.

"['X-Files' creator] Chris [Carter] had a Border collie when we started and I had a half-Border collie, and I always thought of Mulder like a Border collie. He needed a job, so when you see him at first, he's like a Border collie who's a lapdog," star David Duchovny said. "It's not right. And the movie's a little bit about him getting his job back. That's where his heart is." [AP]

Droll old England

Brideshead Revisited (PG-I3)

In pre-WWII England, blue-collar Oxford student Charles Ryder (Matthew Goode, "The Lookout") is whisked into a life of luxury by his new pal Sebastian (Ben Whishaw, "I'm Not There") when they take a holiday at his family's Brideshead Castle. There he observes the firmly religious, overbearing hand of Sebastian's mom (Emma Thompson) and develops a crush on his pal's sister, Julia (Hayley Atwell), which complicates things since Sebastian has always seemed interested in more than friendship.

Catch it: Though its tensions never rise to a boil, "Brideshead" achieves a certain degree of dignity by resisting off-the-wall melodrama. While Goode's been better—Charles' desires and ambitions are a bit murky—the film politely revolves around him as he stands in awe of wealth and considers his own romantic and financial agenda.

Bottom line: Unlike other literary flicks that assume their own sophistication, "Brideshead" actually lives up to its pedigree, rendered lively with gorgeous scenery and a tart, droll script. [MATT PAIS, METROMIX]

Mad Men

9 p.m. Sunday

Real men of genius

POPPICKS

Like its chief protagonist, Don Draper, "Mad Men" doesn't give up its secrets easily.

AMC's critically acclaimed hit about 1960s ad men plays coy in its Season 2 premiere Sunday, leaving many cliffhangers from its first season unresolved: Where's Peggy's son with married sleaze Pete? Has Don ended his flings with Midge and Rachel? Has office bombshell Joan really broken things off with big boss Roger? Is Betty still seeing her therapist, who reports back to Don?

Patience, people. "Mad Men" is not a series for viewers who seek obvious answers. You have to listen and watch closely. It's layered and subtle, but a whole lot happens.

Season 2 picks up 15 months after last season's Thanksgiving Day conclusion, and now it's Valentine's Day, 1962. Don (Jon Hamm) is treating wife Betty (January Jones) to a night at the ritzy Savoy Hotel, but the romantic gesture does little to ease Betty's loneliness.

The seemingly boring Betty comes up with a solution to fill the emptiness she feels inside, and watching her hatch that plan later in the episode is shocking. Betty, much like "Mad Men," is a subversive surprise. [CURT WAGNER, REDEYE]

South Park Imaginationland: The Trilogy

9 P.M. SUNDAY, COMEDY CENTRAL "South Park" creators Trey Parker and Matt Stone have improved upon the already genius "Imaginationland" story arc from last fall, adding new footage to create this film. The action begins with a bet between Cartman and Kyle over the existence of leprechauns. (Don't even ask what the payoff is.) But when terrorists attack humanity's imagination, the gang fights to save Imaginationland, where everyone from Count Chocula to Jesus exists. It's absurd, yes, but brilliant-the show's smart social satire shines through every raunchy gag. [c.w.]

ALBUM Black Kids "PARTIE TRAUMATIC"

The Black Kids are, with their debut album "Partie Traumatic," instantly the coolest "kids" in music. They've taken everything modern and relevantfrom Killers-esque vocals to non-retro synth workand rolled it into one of the best albums of the year without a sour track in sight. The vocals, for the most part, sound like The Cure's Robert Smith on helium. The title track is smart without being smarmy, and "Listen To Your Body Tonight" is in overdrive from the very beginning. They ought to sell iPods with this permanently burned into the memory so you'll never lose it. [RON HARRIS, AP]

The one, the c

Spaced

DVD

This marvelous British comedy series only lasted 14 episodes but is a cult hit. Simon Pegg ("Shaun of the Dead") is the skateboarding wouldbe comic artist Tim, and Jessica Hynes (she was Stevenson then) is Daisy, a would-be writer with seemingly perpetual writer's block. If "Seinfeld" was about nothing, then "Spaced" was about doing nothing, only with cooler and funnier references. [ROB

LOWMAN, L.A. DAILY NEWS]

about calculation. Keep that in mind when thinking about this by-the-numbers adaptation of Ben Mezrich's much richer best seller about a group of MIT students who put a hurting on the casinos of Vegas. "21" becomes a lot more compelling when Kevin Spacey, as the group's leader, and Laurence Fishburne, as a casino security expert, face off. [LISA KENNEDY, DENVER POST 1

Electroma

Daft Punk's experimental film, "Electroma," provides a stunning array of visuals and an eclectic soundtrack, but its lack of dialogue and vaguely executed story probably won't register with many outside their hardcore fan base. The cinematography of the rocky California desert is quite impressive. However, a soundtrack with Daft Punk's own music might have been a bit more appropriate.

Anyone simply looking for an entertain> ing movie will see this as a self-indulgent waste of time. [JOHN KOSIK, AP]

Ace Young

"ACE YOUNG"

ALBUM

Ace Young, who finished in seventh place three seasons back on "American Idol," largely relied on his looks and amiable personality rather than his pallid singing voice. Based on his feckless debut CD, Young's singing career should be over before you finish reading this review.

Smart summer attire for the guys

Dear Clinton,

I watch the show all the time, but I never see what the fashionable man should wear on a hot summer day. I usually stick with polo/golf shirts and Bermuda-type shorts. Any suggestions?

EDWARD, 28, FOX LAKE

Hey Edward,

Thanks for watching, despite the fact that the population of male participants on "WNTW" trailed off sharply about three seasons ago. I'm no TV executive, but I would assume it has something to do with those pesky little things called ratings. American men, it would seem, aren't all that interested in changing their uniform of pleated khakis and light-blue, button-front shirts for the office-and outdated jeans, oversize T-shirts and white athletic sneakers for the weekend.

And to be honest, there aren't a ton of choices available for men. On the bottom, we wear pants or shorts. And on top, we wear shirts and maybe a jacket, sweater or vest. It doesn't take an advanced degree in trigonometry to realize the combinations thereof are fairly limited. Then, factor in steamy weather, which makes heavier fabrics and layering impractical, and you're left with Bermuda shorts and a polo shirt—exactly what you're already wearing. Woo and hoo.

For really good times, you can add some plaid to your life by way of your shorts. Slim-fitting tees pair nicely with them for casual occasions, polos for dressier ones. Beware of doing too much pattern on top, if any.

Another shorts style to consider is the good ol' cargo. It's modern, youngish and very all-American, but best reserved for a Seersucker and linen are two fabrics preferred by summer dandies. Personally, I love a seersucker trouser with a navy polo, a white belt and loafers. It's just a very clean look, and it's my goal in life to always look freshly bathed. However, when I try on seersucker shorts, I feel a little precious, so I've yet to take a pair to the register. What can I say: They just don't jibe with my manly man legs.

As for linen, that minx and I have a love-hate relationship. Linen pants can look amazing for the first hour you wear them, but one short car ride later and you're in Nick Nolte-ville. So I always say, put on your linen pants, walk to the party, have cocktails while standing and you can sit down on the way home.

So, Edward, old pal, sorry if I haven't expanded your summer options exponentially. If you were a woman, I'd say, "Try a floral A-line skirt to the knee!" but I have a feeling that won't fly in Fox Lake.

Just focus on fit, and buy the best quality you can afford. Your look might not be as varied as you'd like but it will be flattering, and that's what counts.

Good luck.

Novena, Blessed Mother, almost beautiful flower of Mt. Carmel. Fruitful vine splendor of Heaven, Blessed Mother of the Son of God. Immaculate virgin assist in my necessity. O Star of the Sea, help me virgin assist in my necessity.
O Star of the Sea, help me and show me you are my Mother. O Holy Mary, Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth. I humbly beseech you from the bottom of my heart to secure me in to my necessity. (Make request here).
There are none that can withstand your power. O Mary, conceive without sin. Pray for us who have recourse to thee (3x). Holy Mary, I place this cause in your hands (3x).
Say this prayer for 3 consecutive days, then publish and it will be granted for you.
(Never known to fail). Thank you dearest Blessed Mother for answering my prayers and always being there for me.

POP DRINKS

Mojito madness

McClatchy Newspapers

The mojito, that seductive rum mint julep from Cuba, has taken over the cocktail scene (though technically, it's a highball, not a cocktail). So it was only a matter of time before those wily folks at Bacardi would come out with a pre-mixed version: the Bacardi Classic Cocktail Mojito.

How does it compare to the original tourist's drink at Havana's famed Bodeguita del Medio? It's surprisingly good. One does not expect pre-mixed drinks to be all that successful—they tend to taste gummy and, well, packaged.

But the Bacardi mix tastes like a fresh mojito, and a good one at that. Of course, one has to add sparkling water, and the lack of floating mint leaves is disappointing. Plus, in the end, it's cloyingly sweet, but so is a made-from-scratch mojito.

The Bacardi mojito may not be as good as what the company's bartender mixes at Bacardi's executive dining room in Miami. But on a hot tropical afternoon, it will do.

A 1.75-liter bottle costs $19.99.

Summer love: A strawberry honey combo

While strawberries, honey and mint make a splendid combination in this seasonal take on the traditional mojito, any fresh berry or tender fruit would work, including blueberries, raspberries and even thinly sliced chunks of pineapple.

STRAWBERRY HONEY MOJITO

[START TO FINISH: 5 MINUTES; SERVINGS: I]

INGREDIENTS

- >> 3 strawherries
- >> 5 fresh mint leaves
- >> I tablespoon honey >> 1 lime
- >> Ice cubes
- >> 1 1/2 ounces light rum
- >> 2 ounces soda water

DIRECTIONS

1. In a tall glass, combine the strawberries, mint leaves and honey. Muddle them until the strawberries are well crushed and the mint leaves bruised.

- 2. Juice half of the lime into the glass. Cut the remaining half of the lime into wedges. Fill the glass two-thirds full with ice, then add the lime wedges.
- 3. Pour in the rum and soda water. Stir gently and serve.

Peterson's ex-friend charged in scuffle

Chicago Tribune

A Bolingbrook man who reportedly worked with police to secretly record Drew Peterson was charged with misdemeanor battery after he pushed Peterson outside a Bolingbrook barbershop Friday, police said.

"Best $100 I ever spent," said Len Wawczak as he left the Bolingbrook Police Department after posting the money as bail. "If I knew I was going to get arrested, I would have whipped his [butt]."

Police said Wawczak and Peterson scuffled during a quarrel outside Hyroglyphics Barber Shop on Friday afternoon. Wawczak was charged with simple battery and was released at around 4:30 p.m.

Wawczak-who claimed this week to have secretly recorded Peterson for the Illinois State Police in their investigation of the 2004 death of Peterson's third wife and October disappearance of his current wife—said his son, Len Jr., 20, called him.

Wawczak said his son told him Peterson was staring at him and intimidating him, and at that point the senior Wawczak drove from his home to confront Peterson.

Hyroglyphics owner Ernest Brown described the kerfuffle as underwhelming.

"It looked like 'Cheaters,' " said Brown, referring to the TV show in which people confront their unfaithful lovers. "If you were looking for a way to describe it, that's the best way to put it."

Stealing kisses? Hershey's store robbed

The Hershey's candy store on the Magnificent Mile was robbed Thursday night, police said Friday morning.

The armed robbery happened about 10:40 p.m. at the store in the 800 block of North Michigan Avenue.

Two employees were inside the store during the heist, in which the robbers, at least one of whom was carrying a handgun, made off with an undetermined amount of money, police said. Neither employee was hurt.

Police could provide only vague descriptions of the robbers, believed to be in their late 20s. [TRIBUNE]

Living lean and green

Associated Press

The bathroom tiles are recycled wine bottles. The hardwood floors are sustainable bamboo. And the sprawling garden gets sprinkled with rainwater collected in 300-gallon barrels.

From its recycled plastic deck to its solar-paneled roof, everything in and about the 2,500-square-foot home on exhibit at the Museum of Science and Industry has a green story—with the goal of showing the public how easy it can be to incorporate environmental sustainability into their own abodes.

"Green should be for everyone," said Michelle Kaufmann, the Oakland, Calif.based architect who designed the Smart-Home. "If it's only for a few, what's the

It appears the public is catching on.

Green building is expected to represent 6 percent of the residential construction

BY THE NUMBERS

Green building is catching on with homeowners, as they look for ways to conserve energy and recycle waste.

Green building's expected Green building s expect share of the 2008 U.S. residential housing market, up from 2 percent in 2005.

industry in 2008, according to a survey conducted by McGraw-Hill Construction Research & Analytics for the U.S. Green Building Council. In 2005, about 2 percent of new residential construction was considered "green."

The goal of the Chicago exhibit, which runs through January, is to show visitors that saving energy and conserving resources are within reach of everyone whether it's an entire house or a single feature, museum officials said.

The modular home, which Kaufmann said uses less than half the energy and a third of the water of traditional homes, includes a kitchen with a countertop composter and a sink made from concrete and fly ash, a byproduct of burning coal. Water from the bathroom sink is diverted to the toilet, where it is used for flushing. A bicycle in the children's bedroom must be pedaled for 30 minutes to charge a battery to power video games.

Visitors receive a resource guide that explains the function of each feature, how they're assembled and where they can be purchased. The bicycle system, for example, was put together from parts bought on an electronics Web site.

Popular 'last lecture' scientist dies

PITTSBURGH Randy Pausch, the Carnegie Mellon University computer scientist whose "last lecture" about facing terminal cancer became an Internet sensation and a best-selling book, died Friday. He was 47.

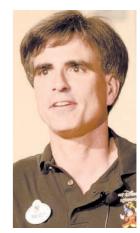

Pausch died at his home in Chesapeake, Va., said Jeffrey Zaslow, a Wall Street Journal writer who co-wrote Pausch's book. Pausch and his family had moved there last fall to be closer to his wife's relatives.

Pausch was diagnosed with incurable pancreatic cancer in September 2006. His popular last lecture at Carnegie Mellon in September 2007 garnered international attention and was viewed by millions on the Internet.

In it, Pausch celebrated living the life he had always dreamed of instead of concentrating on impending death.

'The lecture was for my kids, but if others are finding value in it, that is wonderful," Pausch wrote on his Web site. "But rest assured, I'm hardly unique."

At Carnegie Mellon, Pausch was a professor of computer science, human-computer interaction and design, and was recognized as a pioneer of virtual reality research. On campus, he became known for his flamboyance and showmanship as a teacher and mentor.

PAUSCH

In his "last lecture," Randy Pausch said he fulfilled almost all his childhood dreams: being in zero gravity, writing an article in the World Book Encyclopedia and working with the Walt Disney Co.

With both of our baseball teams locked in tight pennant races, life in the city has suddenly taken on a playoff atmosphere. I can't tell you how many times I find myself taking longer commercial breaks and breaking out my best Jeanne Zelasko impression.

That, and I'm spitting more. Hey, it's the playoffs.

Here's what I'm watching this weekend.

Sox at Detroit

6:05 P.M. SATURDAY, CSN; 12:05 P.M. SUNDAY, WGN

Don't want to sound like Siegfried and Roy here, but these Tigers are getting too close for comfort. ... I'm sorry, that was completely inappropriate. It's just that Detroit scares me. ... Wait, that was inappropriate too. Um ... go Sox!

Cubs vs. Florida

12:05 P.M. SATURDAY, WGN; 1:20 P.M. SUNDAY, CSN Don't look now, but the Marlins have just as realistic a shot of winning their division as the Cubbies do. Let's make everyone happy and stage a rematch of the 2003 NLCS. First 10,000 fans seated in foul territory get free plastic handcuffs and a warning to leave all foul balls alone.

Yankees at Red Sox

2:55 P.M. SATURDAY, FOX Like most Yankees-Red Sox games, this one should feature four hours of needless drama and will probably make your butt and/ or face numb. It's like watching a "Real Housewives of Orange County" marathon, with slightly less colorful manicures.

ArenaBowl XXII

2 P.M. SUNDAY, ABO It's the San Jose SaberCats vs. the Philadelphia Soul in an Arena Football League finale sure to end in a blaze of glory. I say this because the Soul's owner is none other than Mr. Jon Bon Jovi, the classiest head of hair in the entire American Northeast.

By Michael Hines FOR REDEYE

Sure, Joe Crede said with a grin, he could take the mound in a pinch.

"Yeah. Yeah," the White Sox third baseman told Red-Eye a week after the American League nearly ran out of pitchers in the marathon All-Star game. "Absolutely. I think I could."

Alas, the AL won in 15 innings without needing to test Crede's pitching arm, but the father of two still had a blast at his first All-Star game.

Crede, 30, sat down with RedEye before Tuesday's game against the Texas Rangers at U.S. Cellular Field and dished about his All-Star game experience, the Windy City and, of course, the Sox.

All-Star Joe Crede. How does that sound?

It's definitely a great feeling and a great honor to be named to the team. It's We're in first place here, and we're at the end of July with about two months left to play. At any point in the season, you always want to be the team that everybody's chasing."

JOE CREDE

Sox slugger on the team's season]

> Is there one memory from the All-Star experience that most sticks with you?

thing I thought it would be.

That was an awesome display that [Texas Rangers slugger Josh] Hamilton put on in the home run derby.

What do you do in your free time in Chisomething that you'll always remember.

Just hang out with my girls. Going to Humboldt Park or the zoo or any of the museums they have here.

What do you think about the White Sox's

You can't be disappointed in it. We're in first place here, and we're at the end of July with about two months left to play. At any point in the season, you always want to be the team that everybody's chasing. ... It's a lot of fun when you put yourself in position to earn a playoff spot. That's really all you can ask for as a player.

How do you grade your season individually?

I never really pay much attention to the personal stats end of it. You always want to play for a winning team, no matter where you're at. As long as you're part of that winning team, you should be happy as a player. [MICHAEL HINES IS A REDEYE SPECIAL CONTRIBUTOR.]

E NFL SEASON OR S

There's nothing like fall and the start of football, except maybe fall and the fall of the Cubs.

Equally excited. NFL season means fantasy play, but so does September baseball in Chicago.

Football. On the gridiron, at least, Washington's hopes won't flatline until, say, mid-September.

September baseball. To find out which Chicago team will clinch

September baseball-I'm a sucker for crushing disappointment.

TOPIC 2: WHAT DOES THE RETURN OF ALFONSO SORIANO MEAN TO THE CUBS?

About three more strikeouts per game.

More oddities coming out of left field.

More missed cutoff men than "Braveheart."

They get to start the countdown until his next injury.

More pregame stretching and child-proof dugouts.

TOPIC 3: COMPLETE THIS SENTENCE: THE APPROACH OF COLLEGE FOOTBALL SEASON MAKES ME ...

... all tingly inside. Actually, that's from the drinking I've been doing to prepare for the Cubs' collapse.

... want to Tim Tebow chicka how wow.

... hungry for greatness—and Mustard's Last Stand. Go Cats!

... ticked that college football scores get added to the ESPNews scroll.

Proud to be a Penn Quaker! Or, umm, sad I didn't go to Wisconsin.

TOPIC 4: 'STEP BROTHERS' LOOKS SUSPECT. PI' TCH A NEW SPORTS MOVIE TO WILL FERRELL.

He needs to play a drunken golfer. Scratch that. That could be a reality series with John Daly.

Pick something that doesn't mention "equipment" often. Will's not very brofessional.

The tennis epic "Ball Boys." Jimmy has a movie of the same name in his desk drawer.

"Sweep!" A curling love story.

You're shirtless, no, naked, playing tennis, wait, no, racquetball ... with Danny DeVito, no, Sinbad!

TOPIC 5: CARLOS QUENTIN IS THE SOX'S MVP SO FAR. WHAT'S THE MOST VALUABLE THING IN YOUR LIFE?

I'd be a real jerk if I didn't say my wife and kids. Although I really love my iPod.

Jessica Simpson is going country whether you like it or not.

Fresh on the heels of her debut country single, the former (current?) pop star performed one of her first country shows last weekend in Wisconsin to mixed reviews, but she reportedly was ready for her critics.

"I don't know what your perception is of Jessica Simpson or what tabloid you buy, but I just want you to know that I'm just a girl from Texas; I'm just like you. I'm doing what I love and dating a boy," Simpson said at the show, according the Kenosha News.

Sounds like she's still finding her confidence. Before her new album, reportedly called "Do You Know," drops in the fall, let's take a moment to reflect on Simpson's past body of work-and whether it helps or hurts her country credentials. [JIM WALSH, REDEYE]

NEW DIRECTION

Jessica Simpson's leap to the country sector has raised evebrows. A glance at her past dance—and pop-heavy albums might explain why.

Fight club: France?

French police say camouflaged paparazzi who managed to get onto the grounds of Angelina Jolie and Brad Pitt's chateau in southern France on Thursday fought with the couple's guards, The Associated Press reported.

Freelance photographer Luc Goursolas said he broke a guard's finger and bit another until he bled, and that they hit him with a walkie-talkie, and punched and kicked him.

Tony Webb, head of security at the Miraval estate, said Goursolas went "berserk" without provocation and denied that his guards punched the photographer.

release date for T.I.'s album "Paper Trail," which was pushed back from its original release date in August, billboard.com reports.

JOHNNY'S LITTLE SECRET

Acting is literally music to Johnny Depp's ears.

"Johnny Depp has music playing in his ear when he acts," Kirsten Dunst (right) told New York magazine. "He has an earbud. That's why he's so great."

Dunst was chatting with the magazine about her musical tastes (My Morning Jacket and Fleet Foxes) before switching to Depp's musical inclinations. Dunst said she doesn't know what kind of music Depp listens to when he acts or how he conceals the earbud from the camera.

"Maybe his hair's covering it? I don't know, but I know he does it," Dunst said. "I'm in the biz. Word gets around."

Depp's reps didn't respond to e-mail inquiries from New York magazine.

Oh.no? Oh, yes!

The lyrics to her hit songs "I Kissed a Girl" and "Ur So Gay" make some listeners blush, but Katy Perry (left) says she's just singing about herself.

"They're not meant to be 'Oh, no!' songs! They are my life, and I guess my life is a little bit 'Oh, no,'" she tells Entertainment Weekly.

Perry reveals that her sudden pop stardom came after a traditional Christian upbringing in which she wasn't allowed to listen to nonreligious music or watch MTV or VH1.

"I'm not exactly the poster child for anything religious, and I'm definitely not what I grew up in," she says. "But I got this Jesus tattoo on my wrist when I was 18, because I know that it's always going to be a part of me."

So fiercilicious

"Fierce" and "make it work" are popular phrases in the "Project Runway" lexicon. Will "girlicious" be next?

Not if Season 4 winner Christian "Fierce" Siriano has his way. He doesn't like new contestant Blayne's catchphrase "girlicious."

"I can't listen to somebody say 'licious all day long," Siriano told New York magazine. "It's not funny to me." Siriano also says the current season of the show "sucks" because "the talent level isn't close to some of the talent and designs we had on my season."

What Siriano would find fierce is a merging of "Project Runway" and "America's Next Top

"I think they should have the ['ANTM'] girls make their own clothes," Siriano said. "They should totally do the runway, and they have to put together the whole show by themselves."

That could be doubly fierce—or hurlicious.

Happy days

The Chinese people are the world's most optimistic about their country's future, a new survey finds. Makes sense. Their country isn't responsible for "Hannah Montana."

Second in command In a recent interview, Lance

Armstrong hinted at running for public office. Be very afraid, Texas: A shirtless Matthew McConaughey could be your lieutenant governor very soon.

Dancing queen

A New Zealand judge ordered a girl's parents to change her name from Talula Does The Hula From Hawaii—a ruling expected to deal a crippling blow to Disco Stu.

Uhhhh ... How confident are we that Will Ferrell's "Step Brothers" will make up for "Semi-Pro"? About this confident.

Amy Waxhouse

This week, Madame Tussauds wax museum in London introduced a new wax statue of Amy Winehouse. Fortunately, this one melts down only when someone puts it too close to the radiator.

True life

Update: Museum officials can now confirm that Wax Winehouse has been in a brawl with Wax Madonna and later was found passed out at the Wax Pub. Guess we were wrong.

It's go time

With less than a week until Lollapalooza, it's time to get your facts straight. Remember: "The Octopus Project" is a band, not the code name for your secret plan to take over the Shedd Aquarium.

Perfect tin

There's a director on board for a new "Robocop" movie. In a slight twist, however, Robocop's new love interest will be a dolled-up can of Spam.

High voltage

Just one question about MTV's trailer for "The Hills" Season 4: How hard did the cameraman have to shake LC to get that single teardrop to fall?

How does Time Out Chicago

rate the new Binny's South Loop?

"First, you come across an enormous in-store bar. Next to that, the gourmet foods section, where they dish out slices of pâté, piles of marinated olives and cut-to-order cheese. After that: the mixers, the beer and the spirits, all arranged in aisles that seem to go on for miles. And then, finally, there's
